Palladio | Collection 2018

Veneto, with its many villas, palazzi, monuments and romantic gardens, is an architectural marvel. Immersed in the style of the Renaissance and nestled among picturesque hills, this region is famous for its elegance, clear lines and the unique design language of architect Andrea Palladio.

The latest collection by Ardecora is a loving homage to the villas and gardens designed by the Italian master. Graceful and stylish, it takes inspiration from Palladio's characteristic style and revives it over five hundred years later in the collection's designs. This blending of classic and modern elements draws the same attention to Ardecora now as it did the artist back then.

Profumo, the classic part of the collection, is passionately dedicated to his gardens.

The fragrances of the flowers and gardens find their modern form in the sumptuous embroidery of Pergola, while Passeggiata provides subtle notes of a carefree stroll through an idyllic garden with its exquisitely light linen material.

As the modern part of the collection, Villa Rotonda honours Palladio's architecture first and foremost. Geometric motifs with a high-contrast interplay of matte thread and subtle, shimmering sequins reinterpret the magnificent aesthetic of the arcades and round arches of Villa Rotonda and La Loggia on fabrics of the same name. Bellissime Stelle, by contrast, draws our eyes from villas and gardens and directs them up to the heavens, beckoning to a starry night sky with pearls applied onto the elegant satin fabric.

The latest Ardecora collection whisks us away to the world of Venetian architecture in expressing its clarity of form, the beauty of its gardens and the poetry of its fragrances in 19 patterns. Ardecora's reinterpretation of Palladio's work is both strikingly vibrant and exemplary in its beauty.
